And Maysville Lost Again Sunday

Richmond gave Maysville a good beating yesterday afternoon in the last game of the season that Richmond plays here. The score ended 9 to 3 in favor of the Pionners and made two out of three they won from the locals in this series.

Black pitched for the visitors and held the Rivermen almost hitless until he had his game won and then he slacked up. Nine of the eleven hits made by the locals came in the last five innings.

The batting of Snyder, Jones, O'Connell, Haines, Black, Carmony and Clever were mentionable features plays.

The score:

American Steel and Wire company advances prices of steel wire and nails and wire products $1 a ton.

What Perkins and Flinn are doing in 1912 has called forth no rebuke from Oyster Bay.—Oxford (Ohio) Herald.

Texas cotton crop is expected to break all records; conservative estimates place output at more than 5,250,000 bales.

This is the season when Grandma Woodie Wilson "is absolutely in favor"—of any old thing that will get him votes.

Think of it, Senator Ben Tillman has been renominated again for Senator from South Carolina. He should now shed a few senile tears as a tribute to the assinity of his constituency.

We would like so know what the Hague Peace Tribunal has to do with our Panama canal. If the canal is to be under foreign control in the remotest sense we had better sell out and quit.

NO STAIN ON TAFT'S RECORD.

A recent Washington dispatch says: During all of the hullabaloo that is being raised over the investigation of campaign contributions, which promises to be the most spectacular feature of the campaign, President Taft is absolutely calm and serene. President Taft is one of the few conspicuous men in public life who did not cringe a little when the announcement was made that the Senate had agreed to the sweeping Penrose resolution under which the Committee on Privileges and Elections may uncover all the correspondence that has taken place between public men and the Standard Oil Company during recent years, and may reveal in detail the political relations that have existed between politicians and the Standard Oil company or other great trusts.

President Taft, it is learned was at luncheon when a telephone message was received at the White House announcing that the Penrose resolution had been adopted by the Senate.

"Thank Heaven, I have nothing to fear from it," was his comment.

One of the members of the President's cabinet said:

"It is a fine thing that in this horrible mess, one man, William Howard Taft, the President of the United States, stands out with an absolutely clean record. I am convinced that the most searching investigation will fail to involve him in any way in this disgraceful affair. He may have made mistakes as President, but one thing is certain, he has had no off-the-cover dealings with any of the trusts. I am not mistaken, the American people when they finally come to their senses, will give him the credit that is due him."

Under the new apportionment there will be 531 votes in the next electoral college and a majority, or 266 votes, will be necessary to elect a President.

Pronounced revival of business prosperity already set in according to belief of business and financial men from all sections. Engineers, in brief filed with arbitration board declare railroads have doctored wage figures and have not taken into account that tonnage has increased 100 per cent. in the last ten years.

A Wall street report says: "There is every indication that the aggregate net earnings of the various Standard Oil companies in the current year will run close to $110,000,000 or $5,000,000 in excess of the previous high record. Of this amount perhaps $20,000,000 will be used for the construction of refineries, vessels, pipe line extensions and development work, leaving $90,000,000 for distribution to stockholders.

The bull movement in Canadian Pacific, which has carried the stock up 278 1/2 is explained to be due to the talk about the "hidden assets" of the company, said to consist of 11,488,995 acres of valuable land not yet sold to settlers, and which is valued at $168,000,000. The original shareholders already have received 300 per cent. in dividends, and these are said to be assured of further big distributions as the land is sold.

TAFT'S STRENGTH IS ENDURING.

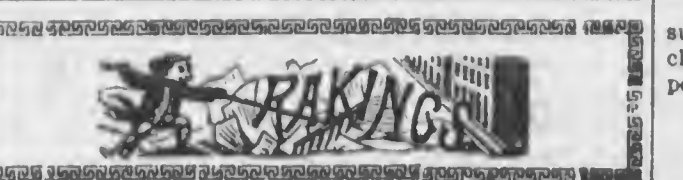

The average Democrat will tell you that his confidence in the success of Wilson is based on the expectation that the third term candidate will poll a heavy vote, two-thirds of which will come from the Republican side.

But the wisest and best-informed Democrats are not so shallow. These expect a considerable vote to be cast for the third term candidate, but they know that almost if not quite half of that vote will come from radical Democrats.

And this is not all. These deep-seeing Democrats know that while a considerable portion of the radicals in the party will be found voting for a third term a dangerously large section of the conservatives in it will vote for Taft.

The Blade knows that this expectation is scorned by many of the president's foes, but it is based on a solid foundation, nevertheless and those who ignore it know next to nothing of the undercurrents of the campaign and had better not bet their good money on Wilson.

There is a growing opinion among those who understand the science of politics that the third term candidate will take so large a quota of votes from Wilson that Taft, with his certain recruits from that candidate's party, will win the race on the homestretch, attracting to himself that large following of floaters which chooses stability and safety in the final analysis.—Portsmouth Blade.

GLINT OF HUMOR.

Imagination has accomplished marvels, but it is not every day it wins a man his bride. Listen to this from Tully Marshall, of "The Talker" company: "Somewhere, mother had never quite cottoned to Angelina young man. Many a time she had meant to have it out with him, and at last an opportunity arose. "Mr. Simkins," she began impressively, I am informed by an acquaintance that you are employed by a firm of pork butchers." "The young man looked pained and crestfallen, but quickly recovered his composure. "Yes, that is so. But—" he faltered. "And," went on the old lady, trembling with indignation, "you led Angelina to believe that you were a customer." "The detected suitor blushed again; but he was a quick witted young man, and inspiration came to him. "Well," he replied, defiantly, "and so I am. You see, I put the lights on the sausage."

Treasury Clerks Are Caged Like Camorristi

WASHINGTON—When one looks on the picture of the Camorristi in their cage in Viterbo, where they were being tried as instigators of crimes and members of criminal organizations, it comes right home to the clerks who work in the treasury department in Washington. Since the economy cranks got to work they have turned the old treasury department upside down. The secretary of the treasury has a little walk of his own, a little elevator of his own and a driveway made through a portion of the treasury plaza purposely for him, none of these to be used by the common herd at all. All are protected by gates of wrought-iron from invasion of the clerks or any of the assistants about the treasury department. Before the economy commission got in their licks there was a sort of placita in the heart of the treasury, the white stone walls being built up around it. When so many of the corridors and other rooms had to be taken up by private elevators, drive and runways for higher officials, this placita was fixed up as a sort of a glass house, and several hundred clerks fired out into that. Of course, the sun beats down on this glass house from the time that it rises until it sets, and the result was that about half the clerks were ill all the time from the heat last summer. So this summer they have put a great canvas over this glass house, and keep water running on it all the time. The poor clerks that work under this are turned in in the morning, and the iron gates are closed like a stone prison, and to get out to get a bite to eat in the 30 minutes they have at noon they have to tell their name, age, nativity, place of residence and a lot of other family history. At least those who have to eat say that it seems to them it takes up enough time to give their pedigree from the Revolution to now before they get out without having to do the same things to get back in, and that takes up at least 10 minutes from their scant half hour from eating. It is said the iron cages are necessary for the safety of the money which the clerks are counting, but the treasury department has been running for about 100 years with no such safeguards, and there hasn't been $100 lost in the whole 100 years. So, after all, the clerks in that section of the treasury department haven't anything over the Camorristi who were shut up in steel cages every day.

Alexander Bluffs Ajax In a Hymeneal Mix-Up

ALEX Power and Ajax Tohey, two leading members of the colored back alley 400, who were related by marriage, inasmuch as Alex had let Ajax's sister to the hymeneal altar and promised to provide board and lodging for the rest of her natural days, were arraigned before Judge Douglas of the police court on a number of charges ranging from "cussing" to "scrapping." The statement made by Alex was, that the lightning defer invaded his domicile and in the presence of his copper colored spouse had used language of a very tabasco-like variety. Alex further testified that he had picked up a stick of stove wood with which he persuaded Ajax to desist. Unlike his famous prototype, who defied the unseen, Ajax wilted when he saw that piece of timber in the muscular hands of the brawny Alexander, and beat it. He didn't take time to leave by the door, but jumped out of the back room window, which, in his precipitate flight he did not stop to open. The result was disastrous—to the window—and the smoky Ajax sought protection of the police. "What brought about the difficulty?" queried the Highland chieftain, who is presiding over the police court in the absence of Judge Hugo (to) L.

"De langwidge dat nigger used was de wint ah is ever heard." "What did he say?" "He say d—n an' h—ll an' er heap too' sleh words." "How about you, Mythology?" asked Judge Douglas of Ajax. "Ah ain't never seed him, Judge; he ain't in cote." "I mean did you use the profanity as charged by Alexander?" "Ah belongs ter de 'Tobacca class' of de fast African church, an' ah don't nevah use no 'family whatsum-ever. Iltt are a mistake, Judge; dat nigger Alex he done led erbout hit." "In the language of a popular song 'Somebody Lied' in the case," said the court.

Capital City Post-Office Cats Always on Job

"ARE" the post-office employees here doing their duty?" "Yes," said Postmaster N. A. Merritt curtly. "How about the cats?" he was asked. "They are on the job, too." Then Mr. Merritt stopped to consider whether Washington had any cats on the official pay roll or not. He wasn't sure, but insisted that they were working overtime, provided they were recognized civil service employees. Whereupon, a copy of a scandalous report concerning Philadelphia cats was shown to him. Philadelphia has had her post-office supplied with a collection of high class cats. As soon as these cats reported for duty at Uncle Sam's office there they immediately contracted a bad case of Philadelphia bookworm. Although on the official pay roll, so runs the story, they fell into line, formed a union, and announced themselves old-time Philadelphia conservatives. The mice have recovered from their scare and the cats are taking graft. An immediate investigation was ordered at which Assistant Postmaster Louis Robinson presided. Testimony was to the credit of the local office, and developed the following facts: No highly cultured civil-service cats were on the register. No cats of any kind had ever sought official appointment, though some were on the job. If any cat crusader ever finds his way on duty into the post-office he most likely will be lynched. The post-office cats have good records, and count their friends by the official register. When summoned before the investigating committee, the cats did not come. "Always hustling in the interest of the service," chuckled the division chief.

Uncle Sam's Official Fish Guesser Is Let Out.

THE official guesser for the United States government has lost his job. For years the government has bought live salmon upon the good eye of a veteran fisherman, who took a squint at each fish and then put down in his book what he guessed to be the right weight. The bills were paid accordingly—thousands of dollars. Every year the government buys from 600 to 1,000 live salmon for breeding from the well owners on the Buckaport, Verona, and Penobscot shores. The price paid is the market rate, from 20 to 35 cents a pound, with 60 cents bonus for each fish for the trouble of keeping them alive. To get at the exact weight of a live salmon is practically impossible, for it is very delicate work at heart. In the waters from the "car," which is an old dory filled with water, carefully flayed with cotton flannel and covered with a netting, which is covered outside with canvas. The utmost caution is necessary, for in the spring the salmon is strangely delicate. So it is that weighing them is entirely out of the question. The government has for years hired a veteran fisherman to make the rounds of the weir on the little power boat and keep account of the fish. All the man had to go by was his judgment, but he could tell by a glance at a fish, even in the sealdarkness of the car, about what it would weigh—ten, twelve, fourteen or perhaps sixteen or eighteen pounds. It was guessing. Perhaps the government officials in Washington didn't approve of paying out money by guess. Whatever may have been the conclusion, the government guesser has lost his job. Hereafter twelve pounds will be the standard weight of every salmon paid for.

BLAMES GOVERNOR

Captain Farley Says Present Financial Crisis Could Have Been Averted

Captain Ed Farley, former State Treasurer, says that the present financial crisis in the State could have been averted by prudent management and better judgment by Governor McCreary in voting bills with appropriations when provision was not made to meet the expenditures.

Captain Farley points to the fact that the Wilson administration faced a deficit of $600,000, but careful management and former Governor Wilson's votes of extravagant bills enabled the administration to reduce the deficit.

Governor McCreary is to blame for not disapproving of the bills providing for foolish expenditures, says Captain Farley.

The Christian Assembly

Mt. Olivet Tribune-Democrat.

The Second Christian Assembly of Robertson county, held at Penn Grove, closed Sunday night after a session of twelve days, during which time large crowds attended all the services. The sermons and addresses were of the highest order and elicited the closest attention. Elder H. C. Ruessan, a former Pastor of the Mt. Olivet Christian Church, was here Saturday morning, delivering an able sermon. Brother Ruessan has a host of warm friends in Robertson and was accorded a most cordial welcome. Elder Calhoun will long be remembered by our people. He is a most able and scholarly minister. Elder Walter E. Frazer and wife are fine singers and were highly complimented by everyone. Fourteen addresses were made to the church.

Elder W. H. Book of Columbus, Ind., who was scheduled to deliver two sermons, morning and evening, the last Sunday, wired early Sunday morning that it was impossible for him to be here. While there was manifested disappointment over Elder Book's failure to be here, the vast assemblage was treated to able sermons by Elder Calhoun, his afternoon sermon being pronounced one of the most, learned sermons ever heard in this section of the state.

The misfortune happening in the early part of the session to Elder R. M. Hopkins, preventing his return, enlisted the sympathetic assistance of every member on the long program to double their efforts to make the Assembly a success.

Said To Have Had Much To Do With Galbreath's Bad Financing

CINCINNATI, O.—The 962 shares of forfeited stock of the Second National Bank, which were sold at auction Thursday by the Comptroller of the Currency for the failure to pay the assessment of $100 a share, were all disposed of at a premium over par, the lot yielding in the aggregate a premium of $8,318. Out of this premium the bank itself secured about $3,600 on stock that had come into the possession of the bank as security for loans, &c. The premium realized averages about $8.61 a share.

The biggest block sold out was that of Charles H. Davis, former Chairman of the Board, who defaulted on 335 shares. E. E. Galbreath, the former President, had 73 shares sold out. The roster of shareholders in the reorganized bank is now entirely free from the names of Davis and Galbreath, who were the heaviest holders of the stock in the old bank.

Elmer E. Galbreath, the former President, who has been arrested in connection with the wrecking of the old bank, has gone to California where he expects to remain until this fall. It is understood that Mr. Galbreath is trying to make arrangements to dispose of the Cincinnati, Georgetown and Portsmouth road, which property was financed by Galbreath and his brother, and which financing is a large factor in the bad debts of the Old Second.

HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

Shylock's Insistency Beaten by a Black Portia

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.—Notwithstanding the fact that the United States Constitution declares that no one shall be imprisoned for debt, the effort is sometimes made to use the police court as a collecting agency, generally by a creditor preferring a charge of obtaining goods by false pretences or embezzlement.

There was a reversal of this procedure the other day at the police court when Elsie Allen, a tall, gaunt negro woman of forbidding aspect, was arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct based on her efforts to collect a debt of 20 cents.

The old woman acted as her own attorney in the case and in the ability to ask rambling questions easily came up to any of the distinguished practitioners that daily haunt the city forum.

The principal witness against the amiable Elsie was a Xanthic colored maiden of elephantine proportions named Molly Maybray. Molly's statement was to the effect that she had purchased 20 cents worth of peaches from the angular Elsie, and that she intended to pay for them sometime before the winter holidays. According to Molly's testimony, Shylock was not more insistent for his pound of flesh than was Elsie for her two dimes, the aforesaid insistency resulting in an attack on the fairy form of the corpulent Molly.

"Do you want to question the witness?" asked the judge at the conclusion of the statement of the Molly.

"Does ah want to ax any questions?" snorted Elsie. "In course ah does. Didn't ah gin yo dat basket er peaches fur 20 cents?"

"Ah reckon so."

"Did yo' pay me dem two dimes when ah axed yo' fur 'em like er lady?"

"Did yo' gin me dat change?"

"Ah dono tolo yo' ah didn't have no money."

"Yo' ain't payed me twoll yet, is yo'?"

"No."

"Dar yo' is," said Elsie, triumphantly addressing the Caledonian on the bench.

"That will do," commented his honor. "You are discharged, but you must not undertake to collect any debt by such forceful methods."

Elsie glared at the judge a moment and said: "Ah bet nh gets dat 20 cents bote dat yaller nigger is er day older."

Go-Cart Is Cause of Mix-Up in Thrilling Comedy

DETROIT, MICH.—"The Comedy of a Go-Cart" would be an apt title for a sketch in which a woman, her two little children, a boy and a trolley car figured the other afternoon. The curtain rose when E. H. Lerchen, 146 Tuxedo avenue, hired Ed Schultz, aged sixteen, 322 Hlunt street, to take a go-cart to his sister on the West side. From then on the action was swift.

Ed boarded a Jefferson car and not having any little brothers and sisters who use one of the tiny carriages, he forgot all about Mr. Lerchen's when he alighted from the car at Fourth and Grand River avenues.

In a few seconds it dawned on Ed that he must be in that part of the city for something.

"Ah, ha, I have it," exclaimed the boy. "I was to deliver Mr. Lerchen's go-cart. But where is it?" he asked himself, feeling in his pockets. "Must have left it on the car," he said finally.

Ed appealed to a patrolman, who advised him to wait on the corner for the car to return and recover the cart. That appeared logical, so he sat down on the curb to wait.

After a while a pay-cutter came along and Ed saw a go-cart on the rear platform. He jumped at the conclusion that it was Mr. Lerchen's. He stopped the car and the platform door swung open. Before the conductor could close it again Ed had the go-cart and was making off.

Mrs. Frank Marvin, 278 McGraw avenue, spied him. She had two little children with her, but that didn't deter her. She grabbed them both and made a race for Ed.

"Where are you going with my go-cart?" she commanded. "Put it down this instant."

But Ed ignored her and tried to continue his journey. Mrs. Marvin wouldn't have it that way and there was a struggle for possession of the cart. The boy wouldn't let go and Mrs. Marvin clung on. Somebody called the police and Mrs. Marvin, the children, Ed and the go-cart were given a ride to police headquarters.

Municipal Elephant Serves as a Thief Chaser

MINNIE, the municipal elephant, the other day rescued Mrs. Jennie Plau, 3338 Paris avenue, from three hoodlums in the Brookside Park woods. Minnie dispersed the young men and nearly caught one of them in an exciting chase down the side of one of the peaks that rise across Big Creek opposite the Fulton road entrance.

Mrs. Plau is the wife of Paul Plau, Minnie's keeper. She had taken her young son, Arthur, eight years old, to the park to accompany Minnie and her husband on their morning walk before the visitors began to throng the meadows and woods.

Minnie is becoming very sure-footed and climbs hills like a goat, Plau says. On the morning of the adventure he had taken on a high path, fringed with bushes, that runs near the edge of the cliff. Mrs. Plau and her son had preceded the keeper and the pachyderm by 100 feet or more.

Suddenly three young men jumped from behind a clump of trees and one of them made for Mrs. Plau. Minnie carried a handbag with $40 in it notes and she screamed.

Plau and the elephant arrived in a hurry. The boys had not seen the elephant, which had been concealed by the bushes.

"One of the boys was only a few feet away from Mrs. Plau when Minnie saw him," said Plau. "I had heard the elephant snort a little while before and I thought either a man or a dog was near."

"Go after him, Minnie," I told the elephant and she did. It was the first time I had ever seen her try to injure anyone and she surely did try to get that fellow. He dodged behind a tree and then ran down hill. Minnie went after him, but the guide saved him. Minnie is slow in going down hill."

Homes Disrupted and City Divided By Lobster

PHILADELPHIA.—This city is agitated as over a question which baffles solution. Wherever one goes it is being discussed. Arguments have arisen, fights have followed and arrests resulted. Homes have become disrupted and the whole city is practically divided into two factions.

The question is: "What is a lobster?"

It was handed up to a higher court here the other day by a police magistrate after he had spent a week in conferring with the leading lobster authorities all over the country.

The case is that of John Hauducour, a chef in a local hotel, who was arrested on a charge of cruelty to animals for placing a wooden peg in the first joint back of the claw of a lobster to prevent it from snapping.

The case was argued today before Police Magistrate Hagerty by two lawyers, an amateur fisherman from Maine, a member of the cruelty society and the proprietor of the hotel. The fisherman declared that he was well acquainted with lobsters and that he never knew one that lived in salt water that could feel pain. The attorney for the society then pleaded that all animals experienced pain and that the chef was guilty of cruelty.

The defense argued that the charge fell because the lobster is not an animal. Then the same argument that caused the adjournment of court a week ago arose and the magistrate threw his hands up in despair.

"It's too much for me," he said. "I'll hold the defendant in $100 bonds and let the court decide the matter. When the action of the court was announced, several fights occurred in various saloons where wagers had been placed on the outcome of the case. In the meantime the defense is planning to make a bitter fight and to carry the case up as high as it will go, provided a judgment is rendered against the chef."
